ORDER

Before the Court is the Government's petition to revoke Defendant Nevoria Jackson's supervised release. On April 8, 2004, the Court sentenced Defendant to 112 months in prison and five years' supervised release for possession with intent to distribute in excess of 50 grams of cocaine base. (Id.) After a sentence reduction, Defendant's supervision began December 20, 2010. (Id.) The Government now urges the Court to revoke Defendant's supervised release because, on October 18, 2011, he committed the offenses of possession with intent to distribute cocaine and driving with a suspended license.

The Court held a hearing on the Petition on May 22, 2014. The Court advised Defendant, who was represented by counsel, of the alleged violations and of his rights to a hearing on the allegations, which the Government would be required to prove by a preponderance of the evidence; to remain silent; to present evidence in his defense; and to testify—all of which Defendant acknowledged he understood. Defendant then stipulated to Violations 1 and 2 and waived a hearing.

In consideration of the facts, as stipulated and admitted, and the arguments submitted to the Court, the Court found, by a preponderance of evidence, that Defendant violated the conditions of his supervised release, as outlined in the Petition. The Court then declared Defendant's supervised release revoked. While the Court heard oral argument from Defendant as to the appropriate sentence for revocation
